

My Shopping List

Today in storytime we featured the pre-literacy skill Print Awareness, which is learning about books and print. You can support this skill at home by encouraging your children to write, and by sharing your own writing with them.

The next time you go shopping, show them how you write your grocery list. Encourage them to write their own list, even if it is just scribbling. At the store, read the list with your child. As you get the items on the list, you are reinforcing the concept that the printed words represent real things.
